BRIEF ACCOUNT

OF

The Origin of the Friends' Library.

IT appears that about the year 1740 our ancient friend Thomas Chalkley bequeathed his books to the monthly meeting of Philadelphia, to be added to the doctrinal tracts and other religious treatises then in possession of the meeting; with a view to render the collection more extensively useful, by letting out the books to Friends and other sober persons, gratis.

These books were about that time deposited in an apartment belonging to the public schools, under the care of Friends, and they remained in charge of the different teachers, successively, until they were removed, in 1809, into the room appropriated for that purpose, in the new building in Mulberry street.

The small collection abovementioned had been, however, considerably increased by a donation from Peter Collinson, of London, and by the legacies of our friend Anthony Benezet and John Pemberton, together with a considerable number of books contributed by various other persons; and since the library has been placed in its present repository, a bequest in money has been laid out in suitable works agreeably to the will of our friend James Pemberton.

The Library now contains about one thousand volumes (including a considerable number of scarce pamphlets bound up together), by which general information, and particularly religious instruction, is freely communicated to many who would otherwise, in a greater or lesser degree, stand in need of this ready means of solid improvement and rational relaxation.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

FOR

THE GOVERNMENT OF THE LIBRARY

1. THE library will be open on the afternoon of every seventh day, from three 'till five o'clock.

2. Every person obtaining books from the library shall return the same within four weeks; or pay a fine of one sixteenth of a dollar for each succeeding week until returned.

3. No person shall be permitted to take out more than one book at a time on his own account.

4. Every person is considered as entering under an obligation to be responsible for the book he takes out, which if lost, he is to replace within one month, or pay the value thereof (to be determined by the committee charged with the care of the library, together with such fines as may have accrued thereon. And until this be complied with he cannot be allowed the further use of the library.

5. In like manner when it appears to the librarian that a book has received material injury

ADVERTISEMENT.

AS the scarcity of some of the works contained in the library renders them peculiarly valuable, it is earnestly recommended to those who avail themselves of this economical mode of instruction and entertainment, carefully to guard against defacing or injuring any of the books by suffering them to fall into the hands of infant children or careless persons.
